A member of the firm's Litigation Group, Sarah brings a passion for the law and helping others to assist clients in a broad array of disputes and other matters.

Sarah graduated summa cum laude in 2019 from the University of Baltimore School of Law, and she was the recipient of the Law Faculty Award, which is presented to one student upon graduation for achievements in scholarship, public service, and leadership. Sarah served as Executive Editor of the University of Baltimore Law Review (2018-19). In 2018, she served as a judicial intern to the Honorable Clayton Greene Jr., and in 2019, she clerked for the Maryland Office of the Attorney General, Legislative Affairs. Sarah also worked as a legal intern for Hopeworks, which helps survivors of domestic violence.

Prior to joining Gallagher, Sarah served as a judicial clerk to the Honorable Kathryn Grill Graeff, Court of Special Appeals Maryland (2019-2021).

Beyond Gallagher

When Sarah is not busy helping clients with matters ranging from commercial litigation to employment discrimination claims, she enjoys hiking, skiing, camping, music, and traveling.
